“ Sweet sweet Arlo. I remember sitting at my desk right across from his room and jamming the his music. Arlo had the best tunes. I would go in sometimes to take a peak at him and his smile was everything. Arlo and his family is definitely a NICU favorite. Family, you all will be in my prayers. We love you, Arlo.

“ My absolute favorite NICU baby ❤️ My sweet Trachasaurus. You are oh so loved. You made the biggest impact on so many people, myself for one. Your gummy smile made my everyday. You will always be my one "yummy" little boy ❤️ I was lucky to have watched you meet your many milestones and to be with you for so much of your lifetime. You will always be in my heart, Arlo. So so much love to Mommy and your whole loving family 🌸💔

“ Baby food, bubbles, tank tops, mat time, lap time, ALL the toys - Arlo brought it. His smile was EVERYTHING. I am honored to have known this warrior and his loving family. You guys made the most of every moment and he will live on forever as part of our NICU family and yours. Big hugs for my big smiley boy.

“ There were many days that I would make a point to go in Arlo's room and coax a smile from him. It was totally selfish, but that little grin would make my day. Being aware of everything he was going through, and knowing that there were moments of pure joy sprinkled in, shows me that higher powers are at hand. Thank you, Arlo, for blessing us with your presence in this world. Your life mattered.

“ When I think back to the first time I saw Arlo, his smile takes over my entire recall process. A day or two after Bennetts admission Arlo smiled at me as I stopped outside of his room. We developed our own little smile from the doorway routine. Arlos consistent pure joy silently guided me and my family during all of Bennetts touch and go days. Arlo was always our first stop in the morning and last stop in the evening. Eventually, we met Ashley and Paco and quickly understood why Arlo was the happiest baby in the NICU... and where all of his personality came from! From then on Arlo and I developed a bond much deeper than doorway smiles. Arlo perfected the art of fake yawning then giggling when he decided it was time his mom and I stopped talking and I went back to my own room. Some days I would get the mom intuition to check on him and would make sure to message Ashley that her sweet boy was either playing or resting. I will never forget getting that tug one day, checking in on him and seeing a nap skipping Arlo had a case of the overtired-upset. We sat together for a few moments and after I promised Arlo he was okay and just needed some sleep, he believed me and calmed down... after giving me a little side eye of course. Arlo also fell in love with the lullaby scrunch monkey we got him, the same monkey we had for our son just down the hallway. Although Arlo and Bennett did not get to physically meet, I believe their monkeys kept them in touch with each other like a game of telephone. Arlos gift of joy is infinite and through our joy there will always be a part of Arlo in our hearts. We will always consider Arlo another son of our own and the Segura family as part of ours.
