“ ..it's Nov. 2019 & Carol is aboard a 45ft boat in the middle of the Caribbean Sea watching her ambitious great-grand children, Savannah & Sebastian in the water feeding, interacting and swimming with dozens of huge stingrays ...and there is no way was she is going to let them have all the fun alone. Ignoring a few well intended warnings, She carefully makes her way down the skinny, steep, moving ladder sloshing around in the waves and eventually down into the water. Her grandson Scott breathes a sigh of relief; she made it down that thing without injury. Smiling ear to ear with a determined look in her eye, she makes her way towards the stingrays. They approach quickly and she realizes they are slimier than she expected! Her laughs and smiles end within only 2 minutes as she takes an unexpected rogue wave straight to the face! With makeup all a mess, hair wet & eyesight temporarily impaired, she decides she's had enough. The tour guides have never seen someone climb that ladder back onto the boat so quickly, or with such a big smile on her face! You never let excuses hold you back from living fully and may that be an example to us all! Thanks for being awesome, the memories, making us and kids a priority even when it was inconvenient, scary or involved venomous predators! We will honor your memory, be sure the kids know you through Christ and will make you proud! Big hugs to the fearless, Carol Roberts! Love, Scott, Jacqui, Savannah & Sebastian
