“ In searching our family history, my wife found this page yesterday. Sadly, it answers a question I have had for many years. That is...I wonder what became of my uncle Buzz? Although he never knew, he was one of the most influential people I ever knew, even though I only saw him a few times. In the 60's, when I was a kid, uncle Buzz would come visit our family. My dad was Herbert Eugene (Tubby). As long as I can remember, I always wanted to be a guitar player. Knowing that, Buzz would bring me Chet Atkins records to listen to. I did that over and over, and still have those records. Buzz one day brought up his new red Fender Stratocaster guitar, and let me hold it. It was the most amazing thing I had ever seen. On another occasion, he brought me a copy of a 45 record that he had sang and played on. "The Preacher and the Girl In the Night" and "Let the Sad Times Roll On". How cool that was! Thanks to his encouragement, I have spent most of my life playing guitar. Most everyone I have met, and most everything I have done in my life can be associated in some way to my music. For that, I am eternally grateful for those gifts given me by my uncle Buzz. I only regret that I was never able to tell him. I am not sure what happens after this life, but I hope that there is a place with music, and uncle Buzz is playing guitar every day.

Buzz and his friend George Milam were out in Oregon in the '60's. They wanted to make a record. Buzz was wondering what would be good song for him to sing. I suggested, "Let The Sad Times Roll On." He liked the idea and he did a great job on it. George Milam sang the other side. Buzz gave me a copy of the record.

“ Martha Ann,
I'm so sorry to hear about Buzz. I know he was your very best friend. But we know he's not suffering and in God's kingdom now! I'm praying for your strength to get through this difficult time. If you need a friend to talk to, please stop by and see me, at work or home! I love you so very much! Praying for you and your family.

“ Martha I am so sorry for your loss, I know how you must be aching inside. I pray that God will hold you tight and take that empty feeling away. I always will remember that sweet sweet boy, yes I remember back to Orange Hill days. Loved yall then and still do. I will continue to keep you lifted up in prayer. God is in control. Keep your Faith.

“ Martha Ann & Lisa,
I am so sorry for your loss but happy for Buzz that he is no longer suffering and he is with Jesus. Buzz brought much happiness to many but I know he brought so much joy to your lives when you needed it so badly. All three of you are part of some very special memories for me. I love you and you're in my prayers.
