“ I didn't know James well, but when I was in the area visiting a close friend, James took us out for a ride on the property and showed us all around. I remember how much he loved talking about the history of the farm and what a nice person he was. So sorry to hear of his passing.

He loved meeting you Christine. He felt the two of you shared a bond because you grew up on a farm. he said it was great to finally have someone to talk about the different ways to bale hay and which was better!

“ James was about as nice as they come. He took me around his farm a few times to show me his cows and hay fields. And he shared his story of working his farm in our community newsletter. It was nice to see him at Smith's Store with his other buddies and he always had a story to share.
