“ When I was transferred to the Home Office from Dallas, Texas in the summer of 1989 our offices were on the ground floor near the mail room with offices and ladies and men's rest rooms on the floor above us. We had a severe infestation of American Cock Roaches and Mr. Spivey was the technician who serviced 2170 Piedmont Road, Headquarters of the Worlds Largest Pest Control Company....after much persistence directed toward the fella in charge of the building....a retired 1 star general....Mr. Spivey ultimately convinced the general that there was a leak in the plumbing upstairs that was contributing to the infestation that needed to be corrected...finally the general, who didn't believe that was the problem, had the ceiling taken apart and an uncountable number of American Cockroaches came tumbling out onto the floor....(looked like a scene from a Spielberg movie) . With Mr. Spivey's help we sealed off the office most directly under the now exposed harborage and L C knocked em' out ! L C had to do a lot to convince the old, stubborn, know it all general where the source of the problem was but he stood his ground until he was able to get it done. I am certain that this is the kind of service experience he provided for all the customers on his route. Rest In Peace Mr. Spivey !!
