“ Teri was a dear friend from childhood back in Asheville, NC. It was a different era and a different life; I hope she treasured them in memory as much as I do now. She is gone from us now, all much too soon. It is a sorrow and it is hard to bear.

Teri, you meant a lot to me as a child, and you mean a lot to me today. It has been said that all that will survive of what you call your life is the sum of your actions, and the ripple effects those actions will have into the future. I can attest to the truth of this statement. You may be gone, but the ripple effects of your actions, and you just being who you were way back then, have had a surprisingly large impact on making me what I am today. In memory I touch your face. A distance from me now, I feel you near. My memory is faulty, as everyone's is, but you will always be a part of me. I think of you often.
